

Succulent Café: Bigger and Better!

Johannesburg, October 28th, 2009 - Anisa du Plessis is a woman with vision – rose tinted vision that is. Life for Anisa is a whirlwind of colour and fun and this is the vision she brings to Succulent Café.

Succulent Café re-opened its doors at a new venue at the L'Corro Shopping centre in Northcliff this October and the response has been phenomenal!

"Colour, fun and food have been consistent in my life and my flair for the eclectic comes through in the décor and the food on display," she says.

This can be evidenced by amongst others the "gastronomical visual feast" as she calls it, being laid out daily by Monique van Boom and the presence of the pink mosaic pizza oven.

"I've got the best team in the world full of fun and energy, like myself and we bring this passion to the Succulent table," says Anisa.

The whole premise of Succulent is based on living life exuberantly with an emphasis on the nostalgia and comfort of the past.

Anisa concludes "It's really about kicking off your shoes, sitting back and enjoying the Succulent experience, taking in the warmth of the décor around the shop - your home away from home."

The friendly team and array of delights, with extended hours and an extensive menu are sure to keep patrons delighted for many a year to come.

Succulent Café is situated at the L'Corro shopping centre, corner of Bagley Terrace and Weltevreden Street.
